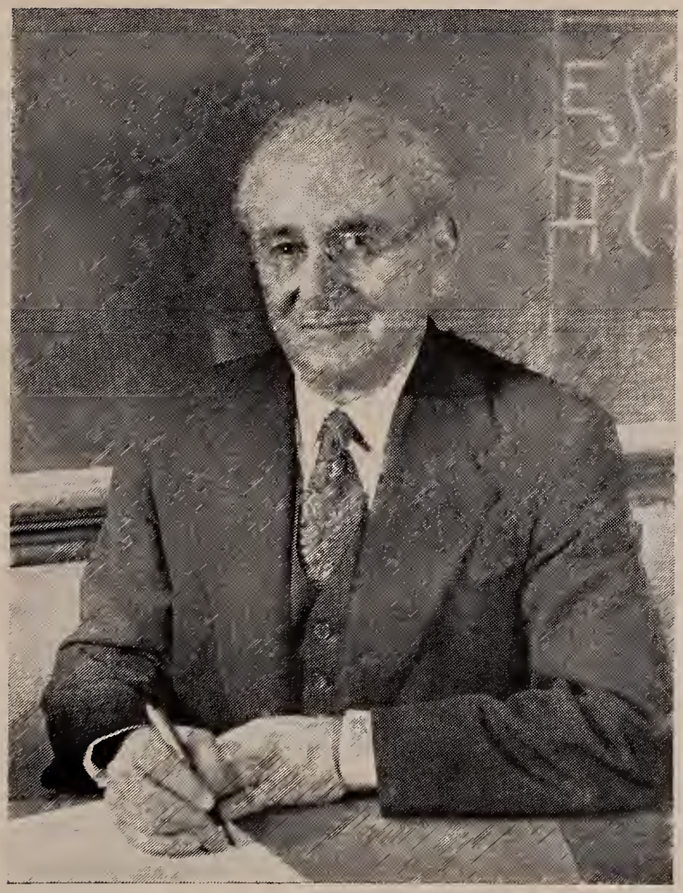
In Dedication



ALFRED T. HODGE

Mr. Alfred Hodge, head of the History Department, has during his thirty-six years at W. H. S. earned the esteem of the thousands of students who have had the good fortune of coming into contact with him. His example of character and conscientiousness have truly inspired his students; he has been a teacher in the true sense of the word. With his retirement, Waltham High School loses an exceptional educator.

CELIA M. SPENCER

It is with deep regret that we learn of the retirement of Miss Celia M. Spencer, the head of our Mathematics Department. Miss Spencer received her B.A. degree from Mount Holyoke College and began teaching in Montclair, New Jersey, and after a few years in a private school in Kingston, N. H., came to Waltham High School in November, 1909. During her thirty-eight years of teaching here, she has gained the respect and admiration of all her pupils, and her fine teaching and unselfishness have made her one of the best-liked teachers of our school. We wish her a future of unlimited happiness and success.

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS

Barbara Allen, Secretary-Treasurer; Lorne MacArthur, President; John Hansberry, Auditor; Ruth Collins, Vice-President.

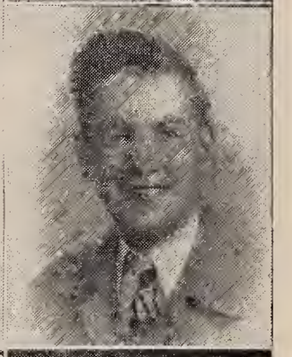
ROBERT S. ADLER
Practical Arts Course
Bob is planning to enter N.R. O.T.C. His favorite subject is physics in which he certainly knows all the answers. He belongs to the famous C.R.W.R. club. Fishing, hunting, camping, and boating are his favorite enjoyments.

ROGER ARSENAULT
Practical Arts Course
"Baloney" says Roger, who enjoys sports, English, and classes in 113. After graduation "Frenchman" intends to become a reporter. His quick wit and ready smile will undoubtedly stand him in good stead throughout life.

SYLVIA LESLIE ALEXANDER
Special Course
"Cy" is known by everyone, from the mere sophomore to the impressive senior. She likes basketball games and visits to the Donut Shop. Nursing or art will brighten her future.
Dramatic Club II, III, IV
Basketball III, IV
Volley-ball III, IV
Graduation Usher III
Senior Play

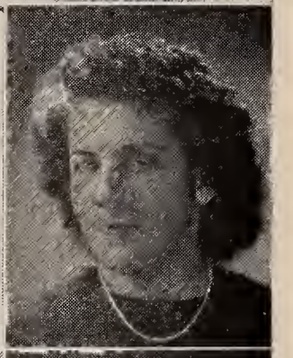
EUGENE G. AUCOIN
Practical Arts Course

GRACE ALGERI
College Course
Talented Gracie's destination is the New England Conservatory of Music where she will become a concert pianist. She likes any of Chopin's works.
Basketball Team
Bowling
Archery



JOSEPH AUCOIN
Special Course
"Oakie" hopes to join the Marines and drive a truck. He likes football and baseball.

BARBARA ALLEN
Accounting Course
"Barby" likes Maine, baseball, going to the movies with P. W., and dates with E. M. She wants to be an Air Hostess.
Junior Prom Committee
Class Day Usher III
Senior Class Secretary and Treasurer
Baseball III
Bowling IV



MARIE HELEN AUCOIN
Special Course
Marie is a cheery, well-dressed person. She would like to be a telephone operator.

LEA ARSENAULT
Practical Arts
Lea is a popular girl who never appears to be in a hurry. She wants very much to be a telephone operator.

CATHERINE ELLEN BALDWIN
College Course
Movies and trips to Boston are favorite pastimes with Cathie, who can often be seen trudging to school with Jerry and Betty or coming from biology with Patty. Her cheery smile will make her a successful secretary.
Bowling II, III
Honor Roll

ROBERT BALLOU
Special Course
"Bob" is expecting an invitation from Uncle Sam soon. He likes history and enjoys all sports, especially hockey. Watch out, Bob! Your expression, "huh," might get you into trouble.

CAROL BECK
Business Machines Course
Carol's ambition is to be happy. She likes being a member of the "Big Four" but dislikes getting caught talking to "Mal" in the "forbidden" corridor.
Glee Club I
Baseball III
Dramatic Club II, III, IV

HELEN BANACAS
Accounting Course
"Greek's" destination is her own dressmaker's shop in New York. She likes all kinds of sports, especially basketball. She also likes to dance, mostly Greek dances. She hopes someday to win the Marathon race for Mr. Hood. Her hobby is meeting different people and finding out their likes and dislikes.
Honor Roll II, III

ALVIN BECKER
Technical Course
When it comes to a combination of brains and personality, few can compare with "Stretch," who is easy-going but remains among the highest scholastically. Although he has not decided upon a career, he would like to be an eye-specialist or a sports announcer. Next year he plans to study at Harvard, where he will make a mark for himself.
Dramatic Club IV
High School Column Editor
Tennis
Honor Roll I, II, III, IV

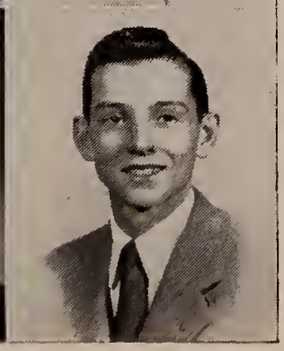
JUNE BAUER
Accounting Course
"Rusty" is an outdoor girl at heart with her favorite sports, riding horseback and taking long hikes in the country — this, of course, when she isn't entertaining people with her tap dancing.

JEAN CAROL BERRY
Practical Arts Course
Jean is that popular gal from 203 who often looks about the building for Peggy. She enjoys snacks, dancing, Tex Benikie, and all sports, but not people who can't take a joke and waiting for Nickie. Her ambition is to become a dietitian while she hopes for a dream to come true.
Girls Club III, IV
Dramatic Club III, IV

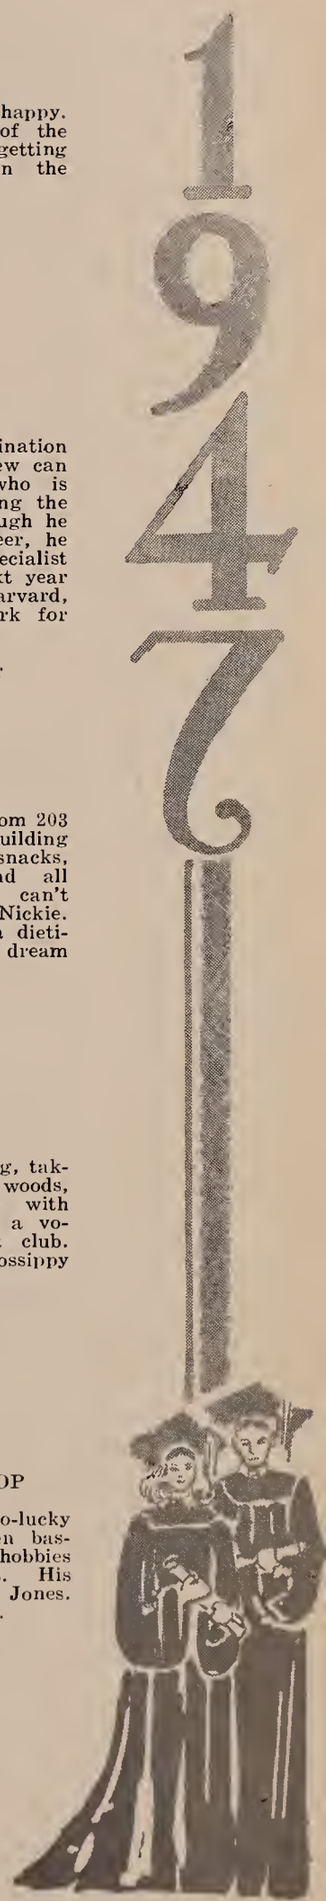
FREDERICK A. BAZLEY
Stenographic Course
"Fritz" is the outdoor type and swimming, camping, and boating take up most of his spare time. Playing the piano is his hobby. His ambition is to be a big executive.
Member of C.R.W.R.
Honor Roll

ELSIE LOUISE BICCHIERI
Practical Arts Course
Swimming, dancing, singing, taking long walks through the woods, and picnics are favorites with "Snooks" who wants to be a vovalist in an exclusive night club. She dislikes conceited and gossippy people.
Girls Club II, III

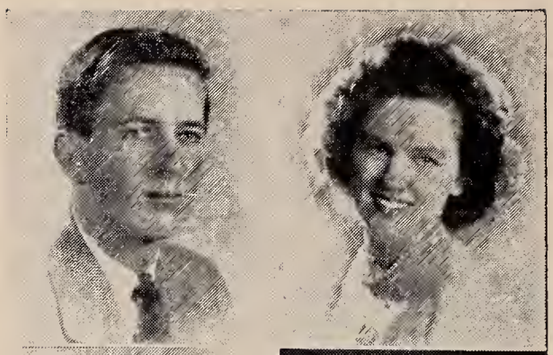
HENRY BEAUDETTE
Practical Arts Course
"You're a hot rock," says "Bo," who intends to become a twenty-year Navy man. Football and English appeal to him, but having to work for a living is definitely out. Anchors aweigh, Bo.



DAVID WHITFIELD BISHOP
Accounting Course
Dave is the tall, happy-go-lucky sparkplug of the Beth Eden basketball team whose only hobbies are agriculture and blonds. His favorite band leader is Spike Jones. He plans to enter the Navy.
Senior Band II, III

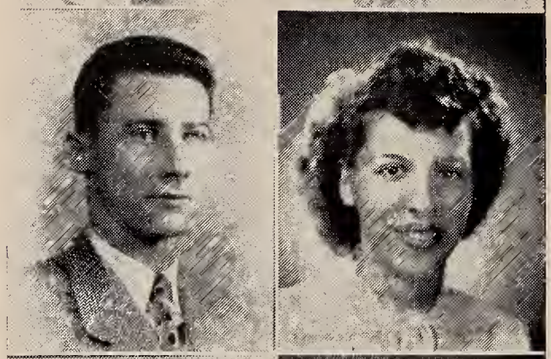


HAROLD BOMENGEN
Technical Course
"Hal" is one of the sports-loving members of the class. He does very well in his favorites, baseball and basketball. He wants to be a flyer and go to California. Best of luck, Hal!
Baseball I, II, III



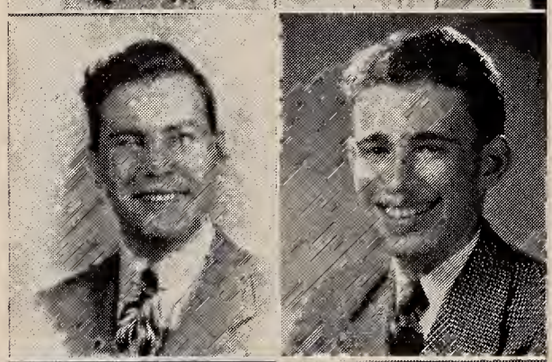
DOROTHY CAMPANA
Business Machines Course
Dot is known to her more intimate friends as "Roberts." She enjoys dancing and traveling — and — oh — is she romantic?
Football Usher III

RICHARD CHARLES BOULTON
Teachers' College Course
"Dick's" chief claim to fame is his haircut which is probably the shortest in the high school. This likeable fellow enjoys football, track, and passing notes to Leona. Next year he hopes to go to Boston College and perhaps become a science teacher. We all wish you good luck, Dick.
Football III, IV
Honor Roll II, IV
Dramatic Club III
Track I, II, III, IV



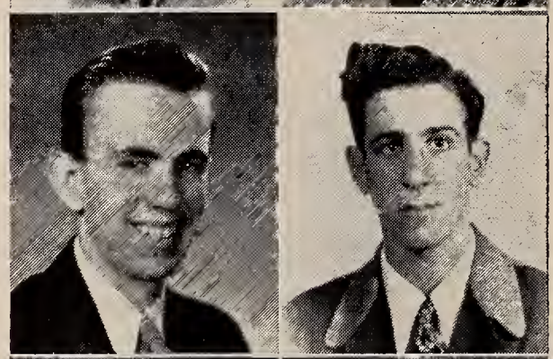
SERAPHINA CANNISTRARO
Accounting Course
"Sara" likes music and dancing. She wants to go to a hairdressing school, and someday open her own shop.

BRUCE C. BOWDEN
Technical Course
Good-natured Bruce's main hobbies are railroading and photography. Because of his keen interest he will be successful. He plans to attend Northeastern.
W.H.S. Photographic Club — President IV
Mystic Knights of the Shining Rail
II-B Club Transportation President



LOUIS MEYER CANTER
College Course
Everybody likes Lou whose favorite pastime is getting together in a "bull session" with the fellows. Some advertising firm will be mighty lucky to get this Lazy "A" president.
Honor Roll I, II, III

DAVID B. BROWN
Technical Course
Tall and nattily attired, "Brownie" can easily be spotted as IV-B's gentleman. Though usually quiet and easy-going, he enjoys having fun with his date, Barbara S., from Newton. After graduating from Tufts he would like to see the world with buddie, Bob Patterson.
Dramatic Club II, III, IV
Treasurer of W. H. S. Photography Club
IV-B Club



JOSEPH CAPPADONA
Accounting Course
"Cappy" has a quick reply for all occasions, and his antics have given his classmates many merry moments. He enjoys Perry Como and Bob Hope. He plans to enter business school this fall and then to build his future in the business field.
Sophomore Social Committee

RAMONA CAIA
Accounting Course
Whenever you see a girl beaming over some letters from Italy, she is Mona, whose ambition is to get to Italy and marry a certain gentleman as soon as possible. She likes people, music, swimming and dancing. Playing the piano is her hobby.

REINHOLD ALBERT CARLSON
Special Course
"What's up, Doc?" are the first words you hear "Babe" say after a nap in the library. He likes writing poetry on pictures, "Bangs," and eating, while waiting for "Burt." Working, and women drivers bother him. Right now his big ambition is to get out of W.H.S. and become a big wheel.

EDWARD CARNEY
Practical Arts Course
Veteran Ed Carney is a conscientious student who is sure to be successful as a construction engineer after he attends Boston University.

ROSE MARIE CASINELLI
Stenographic Course
"Rosie," our future Mrs. P. M., whose favorite sport is skating at the Co-ed, is one of our quieter girls. Looking forward to taking a trip to Europe this summer to get to know a certain someone occupies many of her spare moments.
Honor Roll

SHIRLEY JEAN CASSELL
College Course
"Shirl's" sweet smile and congenial manner will be a great asset in radio work, for which she will train at Leland Powers School.
Dramatic Club II, III, IV
Class Day and Graduation Usher III
Parents' Night Usher
Honor Roll II, III, IV

JOSEPH E. CHAISSON
Practical Arts Course
When you hear "What's up, Doc?" being shouted through the corridors of Waltham High School, you can be sure that "Maurice the Rocket" is around. He likes to skate and was Waltham's leading scorer in hockey this year. His favorite subject is physics. He says he's going to open a good business after graduation.
Hockey I, III, IV

MARY L. CHIASSON
Stenographic Course

THERESA EVELYN CHAISSON
Stenographic Course
Terry's ambition is to become an artist and travel in Mexico. We are all aware of her excellent ability and wish her the very best of luck.
Football Usher II
Honor Roll I, II, III

DAVID J. COLLINS
Practical Arts Course
Whenever you hear, "Well, that's life," you can be sure that "Bones" is in trouble again. His happy-go-lucky personality makes him popular with his friends. Baseball and cokes with M.D. rank high with him.
Football IV

RUTH COLLINS
Stenographic Course
"Miss Personality" herself, Ruth is is one of our favorite people. Sports, dancing, and music rate highest with her. Her winning personality and cheerfulness will take her a long way in her ambition to be a good secretary.

BETTY JEAN HODGDON
Class Poet

Class Poem

We who shall stumble too eagerly over tomorrow's threshold
That separates the future from the now distant past,
Hold firmly with the heart's sure, knowing, grasp
The dreams, ideals, and visions that must last
Beyond this too brief moment, hurried hour
Springing from hidden seed to bloom, to flower
And die. We must hold them fast.

Lest slipping through our fingers they should escape us
Lost in the breathless flurry of the swift, passing years;
Too quickly hidden from the world's sharp eyes,
Its mockery and scorn, its open jeers.
Returning thus, when evening shadows find
Us in darkness, filled with a sudden, blind
And nameless longing, sharpened with bitter tears;

For all the half-forgotten dreams, the unfulfilled ambitions,
For every deed undone, each noble thought unsaid,
Each song unsung, each city yet unbuilt
Phantoms of youth, vanished, and long since fled
Along the dusty corridors of time
While that high mountain we have failed to climb
Lifts high its distant snow-crowned peak ahead.

Grant us, young both in heart and spirit,
The strength of purpose to achieve our goal;
To meet life's challenge with a faith triumphant
And an unconquered soul.

BETTY JEAN HODGDON, '47

Class Prophecy

SHIRLEY ROCKWOOD
Class Prophet

AS I WALKED into the dimly lighted room, I wondered if the words I was soon to hear would really have any effect upon the future. Entering the room, I paused for a moment until I accustomed myself to the semi-darkness. A voice from the dark told me to sit down. I waited for the mysterious oracle to speak again. Suddenly I was startled to hear, "Come closer, closer!" Obeying implicitly, I pulled my chair nearer. "Look with me into the crystal ball, and we shall see what the future holds for the class of 1947." Upon hearing these words, I was transported into the future with Madame Zora, my trusted fortune teller.

The Time — 1960. The Place — Waltham. I find myself walking down Main Street, but a Main Street that is completely transformed. Unbelievable changes have taken place since 1947. I walk slowly along this street which was once so familiar. Noticing a modernistic-looking building, I draw nearer to see the name of the company which occupies this beautiful structure. Looking on the plate which adorns the front of the building, I find the inscription, "Hansberry, Hansberry, Hansberry & Wright." Realizing, of course, that Joanne Wright must be the silent partner, I think that it just like the old days. Reading farther down on the plate, I see, "This building constructed and designed by Marilyn Gowell, famous American architect and engineer." I also remember that Marilyn is married to that famous scientist and explorer, Dick Doucette. Making a mental note to return to this building and look up these old friends, I continue on my lonely way.

Suddenly, like a bolt from the blue, a voice hails me, "Hey, Shirl!" Rejoicing that at last I have found someone to talk to, I turned quickly, and whom do I see but Genevieve Lembo. Genny hasn't grown an inch since our high school days, and, as we walk along, I ask her what she has been doing with herself. Much to my surprise, I learn that she has been teaching football to prospective players for Waltham High. Our new football coach, Ga-Ga Koulopoulos, has told her that she is the best teacher he has ever had. As we talk, she tells me what has become of some of the old gang. Connie Erickson bought a restaurant, but, upon finding that he ate up most of the profits, had to retire to a life of leisure. While he was in business, Marie Ancoin, Carolyn Mulock, and Edith Monroe served as his three charming waitresses. Joe Chaisson is now the star player for the Boston Bruins, taking the place of Don Gallinger, the 1947 idol. A loud crash interrupts our conversation, and we turn to see Philip Pintabona and his wife, Ruth Shaw, limply climbing out of their wrecked car. Officer Fred Rollins rushes up to see the cause of the disturbance, and Phil is hauled away to jail, despite the tears of Ruth. Leaving this heart-rending scene, we walk along, until Genny leaves me at the next corner.

Finally reaching Central Square, I notice a huge new drug store on the corner of Moody and Main Streets. Feeling rather thirsty from all my gossip with Genny, I decide to go in and sample their bill of fare. Whom do I find behind the soda fountain but David Collins, still at his favorite pastime, soda jerking. I give him my order, and turn to look around at the new store. I catch a glimpse of a small office at the rear of the store, so I amble up to see who the young lady sitting behind the desk is. Why it's Rose Marie Duffy, now a private secretary to soda king David. Why he needs a secretary, I really couldn't say. While I am drinking my coke, Pauline Hebert, John Caruso, and family come in for their afternoon snack. After chatting with them, I rise to go. As I open the door to leave, Jackie Rudenauer is just coming in. He tells me that he comes in every day to see if he can get some new ideas to incorporate in Beatty's Drug Store, of which Jackie is now owner.

Leaving the square, I automatically head toward Waltham High. As I get in front of the City Hall, I notice a banner which proclaims, "Lorne MacArthur unanimously elected United States Senator from Massachusetts." I stop for a moment to think what this victory will mean to our greatest politician, Lorne, and to his successful campaign manager, Dick Gamble; then I continue down to Church Street. Reaching Waltham High, I see that it has been completely rebuilt, and is now a very modern building, with only six wings. I enter the school and walk down the first floor corridor to see if any of our old teachers are still pounding knowledge into unresponding heads. In Miss Flagg's old room, I find Joan Lavash, emphatically stating that there is no need to get dirty when doing mimeograph work. In 106 Freda McLaughlin is teaching the elements of algebra, with Dick Boulton doing all her problems for her. Reaching my old home room, 109, I look to see if Miss Mooney is still there. Sure enough, there she is. She is determined that she shall not retire until she teaches Reece McGilvray the rudiments of shorthand. Reece is just as gay as ever, teasing Miss Mooney until she could hit him over the head with her shorthand manual. In Miss Woodward's old office, I find Theresa Chaisson, happily content as long as she can find all her prize pupils good secretarial positions. In Miss Rigby's old room, Shirley Smith is teaching a group of boisterous juniors the fundamentals of filing. Shirl tells me that when Miss Rigby left, she had the supply closet door permanently sealed. Some of us will know the reason why. The problems of democracy are being ably taught by Norman Wagner in 118. Finally reaching 015, I see Mr. Hood teaching a class of seniors the beauties of Macbeth and illustrating his lecture with a poster drawn and painted by Eleanor Rouffe, an eminent artist. We notice that Mr. Hood has an able assistant in the form of Paul Dougherty. Mr. Hood picked Paul because of his mental ability, and also because he is shorter than Mr. Hood. Leaving Mr. Hood and Paul, I go down into the gym to see what changes have been brought there. Mary Koutoujian and Mary Howley are teaching the girls' gym classes. On every Tuesday and Thursday, the girls have dancing lessons from the representative of the School of Dancing, run by Carol Beck, Betty DiMurro, and June Bauer. Realizing that this must increase the social activities of the school, I decide to find out who teaches the boys dancing. I find that John Stanton and Al DeSisto are teaching the regular gym classes, and dancing is taught by John Drury and John Gallagher. This is quite an astounding fact, so I decide to go and peek into the boys' gym and see how the fellows are making out. I see both Johns in their pink tights teaching the boys of the Junior Class the rhythm of the Ballet. This is too much for me, so I leave and head toward the cafeteria to partake of some nourishment. I open the door — and enter the "Caf" but what a place it is now. It is furnished with flowering shrubs and huge window boxes filled with flowers. There are booths, and all the furniture is done in red leather with chromium trimmings. And, will wonders never cease? They actually have waitresses! While noticing and admiring all the added grandeur, I see a small stage in the center of the room. While I am watching this spot, out steps Lloyd Corkum and begins to sing "The Anniversary Song." As he sings, I think to myself, "This boy may not sing just like Frankie, but he certainly has a physique like his." After eating my steak and mushrooms with french fried potatoes, served as a main dish for only ten cents, I leave the cafeteria and head toward the office to talk with the new principal, Rusty Mula. Rusty tells me that when he was trying to get in as principal, he had as his slogan, "A coke machine for every room in the building." He was ably assisted in his campaign by Happy Patty Starmer. Rusty is definitely in favor of shorter school hours and less homework. You can see that he hasn't changed much from the old days. His two competent secretaries, Georgette Landry and Marjorie Ellis are vainly trying to keep up with his dictation. As I leave the office, I can still hear their groans of protest.

A notice on the bulletin board across from the office informs me that there is a movie being shown up in the assembly hall. Remembering the old movies on etiquette, I climb the stairs to see what the modern movies are like. I find that it is a picture on the people who have become successful after graduating from Waltham High. The picture is produced and directed by Elizabeth Jackson, and Barbara Johnson and Cushman Grey have the leading roles. I sit in the dark and watch the every-day actions of these people whom I once knew so well. Jane Gardner is pictured on the screen in a two-piece bathing suit, and she doesn't look much different from the glamourous Jane we all knew. The music in the production is written and directed by Herman Sabsay, the famous band leader. The picture is sponsored by Malcolm Wetherbee, president of that great company, "Mother Murphy's Home-Made Chocolate Cookies." During the intermission, Leona Smith walks upon the stage and models the latest creations of the famous designer, Joan Crane. After the movie is over, an announcement is made that tickets are on sale at the door for the latest Hovey Players Production, supervised by Gloria Sears. As I buy two tickets from Gloria, she tells me that the starring roles are held by Sylvia Alexander, who plays the part of a colored butler named Richard, and Al Terrano, who portrays the lawless gangster, Al Capone.

Leaving the school, I decide I will walk over toward Moody Street. Just as I am crossing the Common, I catch sight of a truck in the distance. It is one of the many trucks of Robert Cheney, the Friendly Florist. Judging from all his experience, he should make a good one. Reaching the spot where Grover Cronin's used to be located, I see Joe Morreale's Matrimonial Agency. In the block-long window, which is built just like the inside of a home, we find Ernie Whitenack and Ginny Crosby. In front of them is a full length poster, reading, "You, too, can be happily married after ten years." I think to myself that the window is getting a trifle crowded with Ernie, Ginny and their four children. As I turn away from this display, I seem to hear a very familiar voice. I look around, but cannot see anyone who looks the least bit familiar. Suddenly I realize that the voice is coming from a sound truck that is passing by. I stop to listen to see if I can recognize the voice. "Learn to drive the safe and easy way. No one is too dumb to learn to drive from Jean Storer, Vice President in charge of teaching at the Storer and Bomengen School of Driving." The speaker goes on to explain how a new blue convertible is provided for the lessons, and how Jean's father fixes all wreckage done to the car. Suddenly, as I listen to the voice, it comes to me as that of Jean Galinauski, who used to be spokesman for IVDS2 in 1947. The truck soon passes on, and I make a mental note to go to this driving school whenever I want to die quickly.

In the building in which Liggett's used to be located, there is a new newspaper, called the Waltham Scribe, the scribe being Robert Sivewright. Remembering what a help Bob was on the Mirror, I decide to go in and see how his newspaper is running. As I open the door, I am greeted by receptionist Janet Neal, who smiles politely until she remembers who I am. Janet informs me that I shall have to wait if I want to see Bob, so I decide to take a tour of the building. In the city-room the first person I notice is Rita Lyons, the Society Editor. Rita is one of the most sought after reporters in the country. Pat Neal is seated at a desk, her feet elevated in the air, looking very comfortable indeed. Pat is the Sports Editor, and she is waiting for the results of the day's major football games. At her right is seated Helen Banacos, the Humor Editor, who draws her cartoons under the name of the "Greek." At the back of the room, seated at a very long, narrow desk in the corner, are Spats Vincello and Irma Cormier, the Love-Lorn Editors. Spats answers all the women's letters and Irma, all the men's. In their personal life, Irma and Spats are very happily married. Finally Janet tells me that I may go in to see Bob, and I enter the sumptious office of the owner and editor. Bob greets me enthusiastically, and we sit down to talk over all the latest gossip. Bob is well posted on all the latest developments of all our old friends. Soupy Campbell and his wife, Barbie Cusack, are touring the world on their second honeymoon. Normie Roy and his wife, Ruth Collins, are in Florida for the Red Sox spring training period; Norm is now number one pitcher for the Sox. He is well-aided by first baseman Diddy Harte. Dolores Mollica is singing the hit song, "Goofus," on Broadway, in a show that has been running for twenty weeks. Stella Tomalty is now head of the Waltham Hospital. Margaret Orifice, Grace Twomey, and Berniece Holmes are all important executives in the Standwell Products Corporation of New York City. Soon my ten minutes are up, and I must leave Bob to his more important affairs. As I pass through the city room once again, I notice Alice LeBlanc busily writing the alumni notes for St. Sebastian's. She has able assistance from one of St. Sebastian's former pupils.

Leaving the newspaper office, I notice that the next store is a travel agency. The slogan of this agency is, "Ask Paul Cormier, and he'll tell you where to go." A big sign in the window proclaims that the most successful health resort in the country is owned by Phyllis Wheeler, Phyllis Taylor, and Barb Allen. The poster pictures Tony Mangini as "before" and Tiny Parish as "after," visiting the resort, that is. I'll also bet that Vaughan Williamson is a regular visitor, too. Another added feature of this company is Dorothy Campana, who will knock the kinks out of your back by massage while Edith Kierstead washes and sets your hair. Howie Read, now an M. D., will bring you back to life after these two have finished with you.

A sign in the other window announces that a new hotel is being opened in New Jersey under the management of Ann Getz; Shirley Grimes is doing all the bookkeeping, and Dotty Haynes entertains the guests by singing, "Frankie at the Saturday Matinee."

As I move on from the window of the travel agency, I hear newsboy Peter Yarossi screaming the current headlines. I buy a paper from Pete, who looks very scornful, for I gave him no tip, and look to see what the latest news is. For goodness sakes! The Jack Leary Youth Center is opening today at Bicycle Park. I quickly decide that I shall not miss this great opening, so I hop into a waiting taxi, only to find it already occupied. Why, it's Barb Hunter, and she invites me to share her cab, an offer which I readily accept, since she is headed for the same place. Our driver on that hectic ride was Lawrence Simonetti. When I first looked I thought we had two drivers, but I found that it was Beverly Land, Larry's wife. Bev rides with Larry to keep him company and also to keep any beautiful girls from riding with Larry. I wonder briefly how I happened to be allowed to ride in the cab. We finally reach the park, and we pay Larry and hop out. I leave Barb and enter the stadium. The ceremony has already started, but I am not too late to see all the important celebrities entering. Here comes Professor Gerald Dahill and his beautiful young wife, Patricia Merrill. The world-famous scientist, Alvin Becker, enters right behind them. Behind him come Mr. and Mrs. America, David Thomas and Betty Norcross. When all these people have been given prominent seats on the stage, the main speaker of the day, Margaret Sherman, enters and her topic for today is, "The Activities of a High School Student." Margaret makes a wonderful speech, and receives a tumultuous round of applause. She is properly thanked by the Chairman of the Program, Ray McGilvray. Ray has been elected president of the youth organization because it was decided that he was the best equipped to give the children the best possible start in life. After the formal ceremony is over, I decided to look around this vast place and see what benefits the children of 1960 have that those of 1947 did not have.

At the indoor swimming pool, I find Lois Coolidge teaching the young people the backstroke. Just as I pass the pool, David Hay snaps a picture to add to his collection of photographs of city events. Dave has inherited his father's well-known ability. As I enter the next room, I am surprised to find a number of little children, aged from about two to six, all lying on blankets on the floor. This baffles me, so I stick my head in a little farther, and what do I see but Natalie Leonard reading bed-time stories from Grimm's Fairy Tales to the children. Nat seems to be enjoying this quite as much as the children. Leaving this room with its peaceful occupants, I enter the next room to find bedlam. Patty Dicks is vainly trying to teach a group of young girls the method of vaulting the boom. On the opposite side of the room is Shirley Fullerton instructing another group of girls in the art of singing correctly in the shower. In another corner Phyllis Corrigan, Dot Plante, and Shirley Erikson are leading a band of young rooters in loudest cheers for Waltham High. With all this noise, the turmoil in the room sounds more like a hog-calling contest than anything else. Going on to the next room I look in to find Anne Koundakjian and Louise Hayes teaching the art of giving the quickest answer to the teacher's mild jokes at all times. In the last room of all I perceive a miniature bowling alley with Rosamond McKenney and Alice Nix expertly teaching their pupils. Finally, deciding to go outside and see what sports are being taught out-of-doors, I see Muriel Crossland and Mary Gardiner teaching the girls how to play field hockey. Mal really has the game developed into quite a slugging contest; the one with the hardest punch wins. Across the field, I notice a hot-dog stand being run by June Varney and June McElhiney. They seem to be attracting the biggest crowd of opening-day visitors. Suddenly a loud roar comes from the direction of South Street. Why, it's a parade! Leading the parade in a very short, white costume is Freddie Rourke. Marching in the parade are all the Vets who went to school with us in 1947. Some of them are Bob Lally, Babe Carlson, Connie Erickson, Ray Higgins, John Hopkins, Tony Romano, Bob Driscoll, Sal Rizzo, Bert McKenney, Eddie Carney, and many others. I notice that Tony and Babe are using canes now. Of course, they aren't getting any younger. After the parade has passed, I stop to rest my weary feet and watch the passing people. The first couple I happen to notice is Thelma MacArthur and Paul Kelly. Teddy has a firm hand on Paul's arm to keep him from getting into any kind of trouble. A minute later, Bob Lassen runs by looking for a nurse. His wife has just fainted. Jean Tewksbury arrives on the scene swiftly and informs us that she is a registered nurse. After she manages to bring Bob's wife back to consciousness, I move on to see what is attracting such a huge crowd at one end of the field. On a mammoth stage are seated seven personable young men, and behind them a sign announces that they are the only members left of the Bachelors Forever Club. These seven stubborn young men who are disillusioning young women every day are: John McLean, Freddy Wills, Ray Comeau, Ken Halloran, Sal Coraccio, Paul Worcester, and Dick Goodale. Stopping for a moment to think what this will mean to hopeful girls all over the world, I sit down on a bench. While I am sitting there, I see a group of young women coming along the walk with placards in their hands. Why, they're going to picket the Bachelors Forever Club! These courageous young ladies are Mary MacDonald, Charlotte Forsythe, Edith Veno, Ramona Caia, Catherine Vanaria, Naomi Kaitz, Doris Hennesy, Rose Marie Casinelli, and Loretta Chaisson. Soon after these ladies depart, Usherette Reva Meyers comes along escorting Donald Meade, James Lynch, Earl Tractenburg, Bob McGovern George Notorgiacomo, and Carl Wagner. I wonder how Reva is lucky enough to have six handsome men following her, but this is a question that will probably never be answered. A few minutes later Lois Russell MacDonald and her family come strolling by. They are having a little quarrel over which path to take, and finally they decide to go to the right. Not wishing to follow them, I take the path leading to the left. As I pursue my own course, a strange sensation comes over me; I'm back again in Madame Zora's mystic environment. The crystal ball has clouded over, and no more of the future is revealed. I pay the oracle and depart. Strolling dreamily down the street, I think to myself "What remarkable things have been shown to me!" The question now is: "How many of these prophesied facts will come true?" The answers will hardly be forthcoming until 1960 and the following years. Let's see what they will be!

Class History

MARILYN GOWELL
Class Historian

IT IS 1943 and eighty freshmen are trying to plod over sophomores, juniors, and seniors in an attempt to redeem themselves and their cause. They come in assorted sizes. Some are four feet tall, while others are four feet wide. They have been making daily trips to the fourth floor in search of the elevator which the senior president told them they would find there. By November they have marshalled their forces and have elected Tommy Pinzone, Dick Frank, Marilyn Gowell, and Freda McLaughlin, as President, Vice-President, Secretary-Treasurer, and Auditor respectively. They are now ready to defend themselves against sophomores, juniors, and seniors alike. With Mr. Mosher they plan the campaigns against the upperclassmen, and by the end of the second quarter are showing the seniors a few new angles.

As 1943-1944 is the last year in which ninth graders are allowed to pass through the sacred portals of W. H. S., the sophomores of 1944-1945 are again the humble characters in the school. The numbers of the ranks have swelled considerably and again officers are elected. Lanky Lorne MacArthur is President, Marilyn Gowell is Vice-President, Happy Howie Read is Secretary-Treasurer, and Richard (of Open the Door fame) Doucette is Auditor. Mr. Hollis has taken the banner in hand this year and with the help of Tony Mangini and his committee has staged a very successful Sophomore Social. This is the first event at which the boys are labeled either as Big Time Operators or "drips," as the outmoded terms go. The girls, oddly enough, astonish all, including their escorts. The wrinkled sacks which were excuses for sweaters have been exchanged for apparel known as date dresses. The members of the class are beginning to show signs of approaching maturity; however, when they are spied by their elders at football games rooting for their team that has won the Eastern State Championship, the oldsters shake their heads in wonderment. By the time the basketball team has trotted away with the Suburban League Basketball Championship, the sophs are very glad to be a part of their school.

When September 1945 rolls around, and the Junior Class begins to sit in assemblies on Tuesday mornings, proud faces are evident everywhere. Time marches on, as do the Junior girls in outsized affairs worn in place of old-fashioned bobby sox. Over the masses of wool, if there is room, loafers are worn. The socks protrude from strange and weird places like seams of the loafers, but this style is definitely the newest thing!

First thing to be done, of course, is to get officers elected as soon as possible. Lorne MacArthur is again President, Betty DiMurro is Vice-President, and Lilian Wilkie is Secretary-Treasurer. Lorny gives a few well-chosen words each Tuesday morning. Two, to be exact. The hockey and baseball teams are rolling along beautifully, and the basketball team has received a Tech Tourney invitation. The Junior Prom has been held, and under the chairmanship of Johnny Hansberry, it has proved to be a big success.

But 1946-1947 is the class of '47's dream year. Since they have been freshmen, they've been waiting for the right to go on record as seniors. The day has arrived! They are the top characters in the school. As is generally the case with seniors, there is no holding them down, as Mr. Mosher, class advisor, is soon to find out. As tradition will have it, Lorne is again President, with Ruthie Collins, Barbara Allen, and Johnny Hansberry as Vice-President, Secretary-Treasurer, and Auditor, respectively. This prominent foursome is given due publicity in "This Week at Waltham High," which is edited by Alvin Becker and Barb Cusack each Wednesday afternoon from the library. These two newshounds have but one objective — NEWS! —. "Put it in the column" has become the password. The Dramatic Club, sponsored by Miss Brown and Mr. Huff, is rolling along with Betty Jackson as President. The club has given two one-act plays which were directed by Mr. Nelson. The basketball team is again out in front, and has received another invitation to the Tech Tourney; not only does the team deserve credit, but also the peppy cheerleaders and the band.

The night of the Senior Dance — ah yes, there hangs a tale. There are blizzards and there are blizzards, but there's no holding a good senior down. As foot after foot of snow has piled up, the future of the dance becomes uncertain. But it is held, and the girls carry their corsages, the boys carry the girls, and Dad's car carries all. When the boys discover that the floor does not appear to be waxed, the girls tactfully suggest that they remove their rubbers to facilitate dancing conditions, and "a good time is had by all."

The class motto "Excelsior" has carried the class through three years of work and fun. Now it is time to start thinking of Class Day, Graduation, and the Senior Play. "June Mad," the stars of which are Ruthie Collins and Clark Campbell, is directed by Mr. Nelson.

Everyone wonders what is ahead next for him, and each knows that he'll never forget these wonderful days at Waltham High. He'll always remember the people who have helped him so much when life was so unhappy, the exams were impossible or, yes, even when his new girl had jilted him. These are his school days, and they have been superb, every minute of them. Life ahead may seem very uncertain, but here is something he can always remember to be truly — the best time of his life.

MARILYN GOWELL, '47

Class Will

BE IT KNOWN to all men that we, the Class of 1947, being of sound and disposing mind (we hope) and wishing to dispose of our few but valuable assets, do make and publish this last will and testament.

To Mr. Goodrich we leave our admiration for his deep interest in and his efficient administration of Waltham High School.

To the Class of '48, next year's seniors, we leave a book entitled How to Make a Sophomore Miserable. This book, retailing at $7, has been written by the talented jokesters, Tony Mangini, Mal Weatherbee, and Bob Lassen.

To Mr. Hodge we leave a package of "El Ropo" cigars with which to celebrate the first day of his retirement.

To Miss U. B. Hart, who has weathered the assault of the Technical and College Preparatory German class, we bequeath a whistle with which to quiet down her exuberant future engineers.

To all the Waltham High School students whose fate it will be some day to study chemistry and physics we leave our sincere condolences.

And to Messrs. Morang, Hollis, and May, who pilot their students through the above mentioned courses, we leave a copy of The Slave Driver's Manual, a book describing the intricacies of handing out three-hour homework assignments.

To the Misses Rigby, Mooney, and Grover we leave a helicopter in which they may hover over their passing classes and tag potential class clippers as they attempt to make their "get-aways."

To Dick Doucette, Ernie Whitenack, Joe Morreale, Don Meade, Bob Pattersen, Dick Gamble, Fred Wills, John Drury, Carl Wagner, Paul Kelly, Al DiSisto, and F. C. Rollins we leave box tickets to that well-known orpheum whose motto is "Always something doing, et cetera."

HOWARD READ
Class Will

To Marilyn Gowell, girl most likely to succeed, we bequeath a pair of tweeds with the hope that she will use them to advantage when she makes her start in the masculine profession of engineering.

To Margaret Sherman, most studious girl, we have a copy of Milton's Il Peuseroso which she can read if ever the desire to forsake the studious life comes to her.

To Lorne MacArthur, our most popular boy and our president for three years, we leave a "vote for MacArthur" button and also the promise of our support in the 1952 presidential election.

To Jean Sheridan, best-looking senior girl, we leave a bottle of grade A oomph oil and a long, low whistle.

To Dave Thomas, best-looking boy, we leave a small black book in which he may place alphabetically a list of his cuties.

To Rusty Mula, our class wit, we leave a copy of Can You Top This? and also a genuine Colgate laugh meter with which he may compute the success of his gags.

To Jane Gardner, brightest social light, we leave a forty-eight hour day during which she can accomplish her many social duties.

To our glamor girl, Edyth Lunny, we bequeath a sarong. Need I say more?

To Joan Crane, best-dressed girl, we leave a supply of zippers so that she will never fall victim to that terrible enemy of femininity "gaposis."

To Ruth Collins, who holds double honors as the most popular girl and Miss Personality-plus of Waltham High School, we leave a black limousine in which to speed away from her autograph-hungry public.

To John Hansberry, best-dressed boy, we leave a derby hat and a box of tacks so that he may retain his sharpness.

To Mary Koutoujian, our most athletic girl, we leave a pair of long black stockings for which she will find use when she becomes a "gym" instructor.

To Norman Roy, who is by unanimous choice our most athletic boy, we leave a box of wheaties.

To Clark Campbell and Barbara Johnson, chosen best actor and actress respectively, we leave a box of mellow tomatoes which will serve to protect them against future egg or grapefruit throwing audiences.

We hereby nominate the Misses Clement and Spencer and Mr. Curry co-executors of this last will and testament. We hereunto set our hand in the presence of these three witnesses this sixth day of June in the year one thousand nine hundred and forty-six.

Following The Crimson Teams

For almost fifteen years Doctor Coh n has conscientiously and efficiently carried out his duties as physician for the Waltham High School athletic teams, gaining the respect and admiration of the entire student body.

"Doc," as he is known to almost everyone, graduated from Waltham High School with the class of 1922. During his three years here he became well known as an outstanding student and for his athletic ability in basketball. He received his B.A. from Tufts College in 1925 and his M.D. in 1929. Following his internship at several large New York and Boston hospitals he established his office in Waltham. He served in the U. S. Army Medical Corps between 1942 and 1946, attaining the rank of major.

Most of us well remember "Doc" for the excellent medical care he has given the athletic teams, but to many of us, he has been both friend and adviser. His sincere interest in the students and their welfare and his help and advice have been instrumental in assisting many Waltham High School students to attend college and to plan their careers. Both the student body and faculty greatly appreciate this, and we take this opportunity to express our heartfelt thanks.

Lorne Mac Arthur

COACH QUINN

One of the best known schoolboy sports writers in the state printed in his column during the basketball season that no schoolboy basketball coach in Massachusetts was a greater student of the game than our own likeable court mentor, Arthur Quinn. In making this statement the writer really hit the nail on the head as is attested by the fact that since Waltham High School revived basketball under Mr. Quinn in 1937, its teams have registered 111 victories against only 59 defeats. (This record does not include the 1942 season in which Mr. Quinn was in the service and Jack Leary directed the basketball team.) As we bear his reputation and record in mind, it seems strange that while in high school and in college Mr. Quinn never had the vaguest inkling that he would some day wind up holding the reins of a high school basketball team.

Mr. Quinn attended Boston College High where he was a member of the hoop squad and upon graduating entered Boston College, where basketball wasn't at that time a recognized sport. After receiving his AB degree he studied for and received his Masters Degree in English, graduating in 1925. Four years later, in 1929, he took the position of English teacher at the Waltham Trade School. In the same year he assumed the role of coach of the Trade School fledgling court five. Mr. Quinn guided the teams through eight highly successful seasons, in which they emerged victors in 75 per cent of their games. In 1937 he was called upon to revive the game of basketball at Waltham High School, which was to be a member of the new six-team Suburban League. In his first season he molded a powerful team that tied Rindge Tech for league supremacy. Rindge refused to play Waltham for the title, but a clash did develop between the two for the right to represent the league in the Tech Tournament, Rindge winning on its home court, 24-16. After a good 1938 season, the Quinnmen became locked in a three-way tie for the title from Arlington, 32-30. His 1940 and 1941 teams had mediocre seasons and in 1942 the high school suffered its first and only losing season since 1937 as it wound up with nine losses against seven victories. The next year, while Mr. Quinn was in the service, Jack Leary handled the court five. Mr. Quinn, upon returning from the service the next year, organized a team the likes of which Waltham has never seen, as it roared unscathed through its twelve league games, and compiled an impressive seventeen-game winning streak. Its only reverse came at the hands of a magnificent Tony Lavelli — who led Somerville High team in the finals of the Tech Tourney. After an average 1945 season, the Quinnmen regained their winning ways in 1946, capturing thirteen verdicts against four losses, but being overlooked in the Tech Tourney selections. This year, as you all know, he fielded his usual five club, which tied for the league title and gained the finals of the Tech Tourney, only to lose to a superb Durfee High team that Mr. Quinn ranks on par with the 1944 Somerville team as the best schoolboy team he has ever seen.

Looking back over his ten years as hoop mentor of the high school, Mr. Quinn names the following players to his all-time Waltham High team:

Right forward ..... Terry McGovern
Left forward ..... Leo Shaughnessey
Center ..... Al Rhodenhizer
Left guard ..... Normie Roy (Captain)
Right guard ..... Bill O'Brien
Utility ..... Ted Scafidi (could replace any guard or forward)

Following The Crimson Teams

BASKETBALL

Other outstanding players that have come under his guidance are Roy Melody, Cliff Larson, Phil Caminiti, Bill Manning, Dick Bennett, Bob Lally, Carlo Scafidi, and Ducky Keane. Mr. Quinn calls Normie Roy, his captain, the best leader and competitor he has ever coached, and names the great Tony Lavelli as the finest schoolboy basketball star he has ever witnessed in action.

During the summer, in the few months that his mind is not centered on basketball, Mr. Quinn lives in his cottage at Quincy where he spends his time swimming and, in general, enjoying his well-earned rest. Since his college days he has built up a library of from 700 to 800 books, ranging from the classics of Homer and Shakespeare to the stories of the wild west by Bret Harte.

Just watching him sitting on the end of the bench, chin in hand, plotting his strategy and picking out the opponent's weaknesses during a game, gives one a feeling of complete confidence in his every move. As long as he remains as our basketball coach, Waltham High's court future will be bright.

Basketball Summary

After roaring through its first eleven games in a manner reminiscent of the powerhouse 1944 team, a scrappy Waltham High School basketball five fought its way from the depths of a seemingly disastrous slump to work its way into the finals of this year's Tech Tourney at the Boston Garden.

As three three-year veterans, Ed "Ducky" Keane, Normie Roy, and Teddy Scafidi were practically conceded their positions at the season's start, the remaining members of the squad were left to vie for the two remaining starting berths. One was won by Walter "Watso" Bartlett, a slim junior, who didn't find himself until the middle of the season. "Watso" scored a scant 15 points in the first nine games from his forward station, but suddenly caught fire, found the range, led the team in scoring in several crucial games, and proved himself a great asset to the squad in its stretch drive. The fifth starter was Tony "Greek" Bahros, scrappy football center, who, although inexperienced, held down the important pivot post. "Greek," like Watso, flashed his best form near the close of the season. Rounding out the varsity were Ken Cormier, Bob Damoiseau, and Tom McMahon, all of whom left the squad before the season's close, and also Bob Dakin, "Buddy" Williams, and Fred Wills.

The hoopsters, after the auspicious start, bogged down following their initial loss, a heartbreaking 37-36 setback at the hands of arch-rival Newton, and proceeded to drop three of their next four games, falling into a tie with Cambridge Latin for leadership of the Suburban League. Mr. Quinn, veteran hoop mentor, quickly took steps to remedy the weakness, and brought the team into the Tech Tourney at its best form of the season. The Quinnmen toppled highly favored North Quincy, 33-30, in the opening round and then exploded the upset of the tourney in conquering Brockton, 31-24; the Shoe City five had been surprise victors over a supposedly invincible Somerville team that had twice administered defeat to Waltham. In the finals the team had the misfortune of running up against a superb Durfee High contingent, which later proved itself the second-best team in the New England Tourney. The Fall River sensations easily won the Eastern Massachusetts crown from our exhausted boys, who covered themselves with glory.

The loss in the finals was not a depressing defeat, however, as both Mr. Quinn and the team itself expressed satisfaction with the job done on the season as a whole and the first two games of the tourney in particular. For being invited to the tourney each member of the squad received a small plaque, and for reaching the finals, a silver ring. Normie Roy's outstanding performance in the series earned him a place on the tourney all-star team at a guard position.

As expected, the steady season-long play of Keane, Roy, and Scafidi was rewarded by berths on the coaches' Suburban League all-star team. Ducky Keane, with 171 points, was the league's third highest scorer and his aggregate represented the largest number of points ever tallied by a member of a Waltham High School basketball team.

Although the big three are all due to graduate this June, Mr. Quinn will have a number of experienced players returning next fall. He is looking forward, and not too happily may we add, to another typically pint-sized squad, and he stresses the fact that he will begin from scratch next fall

Cold, hot, cold — that's the way the fortunes of this year's W. H. S. hockey team ran as it struggled through the season to finish with an unimpressive record of 2 victories, 5 losses, and 3 ties. Although no returning veterans from the all-conquering 1945 team were to be had, and four newcomers to the high school hockey picture were in the starting lineup, Coach Walter Brinn, as well as the team itself, held an optimistic outlook at the start of the season.

Dreams of a championship team were rudely shattered, however, when the pucksters dropped the first two games of the season, 3-1, and 3-2. In both setbacks the squad more than held its own in territorial play, but seemed to lack the scoring punch necessary to swing the balance in its favor. This dark period represented the team's first low ebb of fortune.

Then came the renaissance. The starting lineup was revamped, the style of play was changed, and the result was a winning club. First return of the shakeup was a 1-1 tie with Framingham. The following week the peak, which was to last four weeks, was reached, as the team virtually skated Norwood out of the St. Botolph Street rink in a decisive 4-0 triumph. For the first time it appeared that the team was ready and raring to go, as it displayed lightning speed, smooth passing, hard and accurate shooting, and superb goal tending to go with a now smooth-functioning and more experienced defense tandem. In proper condition and spirit, the team squared off for successive games against the league leaders, Watertown and Walpole. The two resulting games ranked among the fastest skated and best played of the Bay State season, each winding up in a scoreless deadlock. In both contests the team played a championship calibre of hockey, outskating and outshooting its highly regarded rivals, but without the smile of Lady Luck, had to be content with ties rather than victories. Much of the credit for these two dazzling performances can be traced to the sparkling net play of Charlie "Chuck" Roache, the high school's sensational sophomore.

Needing a victory to qualify for the first division play-offs, the team came through with the chips down to batter a weak B. C. High club, 5-1. The lone B. C. High marker represented the first goal scored against Waltham and Chuckie Roache in over ten periods of blistering hockey.

Qualifying for the first division play-offs did not pan out as well as expected, however, as the Brinnmen, losing their scoring punch as well as their defensive effectiveness, dropped three straight contests to the league's best by the scores of 5-1, 3-1, and 3-2.

Waltham's lone representative on the first team of the coaches' all-star aggregation was a lightning-fast junior, Charlie Metz. Chuckie Roach, Lorne MacArthur, and Joe Chaisson were honored with second team berths.

Coach Brinn, realizing his work is cut out for him in the coming season, has already organized next year's squad and has held several practices since the close of the season. With three first-team men, Metz, McKenna, and Roache returning next season, along with the second line intact, Coach Brinn has a strong nucleus with which to work.

Acknowledgements

At last the graduation issue of the Mirror is ready to go off to press and we editors are taking this opportunity to express our gratitude to the people responsible for the success of this year's publications.

Our hearty appreciation goes to the editors of the Literary Committee, and Art Staff, and in particular to four staff members who did an outstanding job: Miriam Greene, Barbara Fitzgerald, Charles Koulopoulos, and Isabelle MacKenzie. The Mirror write-up staff, whose names appear in the front of this book, did admirably, and we are grateful also to Joan Lavash, Marguerite Peterson, Patricia Starmer, Barbara Allen, Jean Storer, and Marjorie Ellis for assisting us in correcting and arranging the write-ups.

The Business and Advertising Staff worked commendably, under the capable management of Lois Coolidge and Robert Sivewright. We thank Miss Grover and her classes, who typed the manuscripts for the printer, Mr. Jacob Nottenburg and the members of the Trade School printing department, who did the make-up and press-work, and the Mirror room-agents, who sold and distributed the magazine.
